Help us to stop Zenith Energy from transporting dangerous crude oil-by-rail through our communities!

- More than 25% of the population in Multnomah county lives within the half-mile "evacuation zone" around train routes.
- Trains carrying large amounts of flammable or poisonous products pose serious risks to the health and safety of our communities and our environment.
- On the best day, the trains emit hazardous pollutants. On the worst day, these trains can result in a catastrophic event if they derail, spill, or catch fire.
- Pollution from these trains disproportionately burdens Portland communities of color and low-income communities. None of the oil is used locally, making it an all-risk, no-reward deal for our communities.
